Work it

Even if you can't tolerate to sit in a role you enjoy and happy in your current company, it is still important to take care of your career because you never know when it would be over. But there is another, perhaps even more important reason. Career success starts with showing your best skills and working hard in your current role.

So what could your leading to ensure your image and reputation doesn't bring a good performance review to a halt?

1. Communicate. Be consistent in your approach and your behavior. Let your colleagues and supervisors know what you're doing. Don't be a lone wolf. If you're not talking, you're not being seen.

"Keeping your head down and working hard is not enough."

2. 3. 4. 5.

2. Proactive. Be ahead of the game. Don't wait for things to happen to you. Take initiative. Don't wait for someone to tell you what to do.

3. Be a team player. Don't be the only one who's doing the work. Share your ideas and your workload with others. Don't be a lone wolf.

4. Be a problem solver. Don't just report problems. Try to find solutions. Don't be a complainer.

5. Be a good listener. Don't just talk. Listen to what others have to say. Don't be a know-it-all.

6. 7. 8. 9.

6. Be a good communicator. Don't just talk. Listen to what others have to say. Don't be a know-it-all.

7. Be a team player. Don't be the only one who's doing the work. Share your ideas and your workload with others. Don't be a lone wolf.

8. Be a problem solver. Don't just report problems. Try to find solutions. Don't be a complainer.

9. Be a good listener. Don't just talk. Listen to what others have to say. Don't be a know-it-all.

Whatever you choose to do, make sure you do something. Don't neglect your long-term career for the sake of short-term job priorities. Keeping your head down and working hard is not enough.
